

Good Psychic Jobs

As a professional Psychic has been working in the field for over 15 years I'm continuously questioned about my choice of career, and one of the most common questions I get is where do you find Psychic jobs? Psychic jobs are generally not advertised in the local papers, and there aren't too many recruitment agencies that deal with this type of work.

Most psychic jobs are advertised by word of mouth, the psychic community is relatively close-knit and this word-of-mouth technique works very well. You'll also find advertisements on the back of niche magazines and often on pin boards in specialist stores.

If you think you would like to pursue a career as a Psychic or clairvoyant, you must ensure that you have a good CV just like for any other job, this should outline your credentials and work experience. It would also be a good idea to join an organisation such as the American Association of psychics, or the Association of spiritualists and healers.

There are several different types of career path you can choose, these include working online or over the phone, setting up your own home business, or a specialty shop. Setting up your own business is probably the most difficult, while it is easy to find premises and the necessary furniture, it is often difficult to attract new customers. It is often easier when you are starting out to find a job with another Psychic.

You must be ready and prepared for a job interview if you choose to work for someone else, and you may also be monitored closely for the first couple of months. A psychic job interview will more than likely involve you giving a reading on a test subject which will ascertain how talented you are. You may be asked to repeat these readings on a number of different people to ensure your accuracy and consistency.

A clairvoyant or psychic who is truly gifted will be sought after in the competitive market of online and phone psychics. If you would like a job in this type of environment you only need to prove yourself and you'll be snapped up in an instant. If you think you have special gifts such as divination or dream interpreter you need to make sure you mention this at the start of any potential job interview, as this will only enhance your prospects.
